Chapter President

Jonathan Pepples

Dear SDFM Aviation Chapter Members,

As we begin September, I open this greeting on a topic that requires care and respect: National Suicide Prevention Month. Across the Department of War and the Department of the Air Force, suicide prevention is a shared responsibility. The Wingman culture we practice—looking out for fellow Airmen, Guardians, DoD civilians, and families—remains one of our strongest protective factors. Prevention starts with connection: noticing changes in behavior, reaching out with genuine concern, and guiding someone toward help when needed.

Confidential resources are available 24/7. Call or text 988 and press 1 (or text 838255) for the Military Crisis Line. Military OneSource (1-800-342-9647) also offers free counseling. The Air Force ACE model—Ask, Care, Escort—provides a practical framework to intervene. Please take care of yourselves and one another this month and every month.

I am proud of our strong turnout for the volunteer event at Feed the Creek in Beavercreek, Ohio, on 21 August 2026. Chapter members packed nonperishable food items that will help local children have nutritious lunches and weekend meals. Your generosity and teamwork made a tangible difference in our community, and I thank every volunteer who participated.

Looking ahead, the chapter is excited to support the Air Force Marathon on 19 September and our golf scramble on 8 October at the Beavercreek Golf Course. These events offer excellent opportunities for camaraderie and networking. Please watch for registration details and consider joining us.

With the Labor Day holiday upon us, I wish each of you a safe and restful break with family and friends. September means fiscal year closeout. This time of year is demanding for defense financial management professionals, your expertise and dedication ensure our Air Force and DoD organizations remain good stewards of taxpayer resources. Thank you in advance for the focused effort many of you will invest in the weeks ahead.

It continues to be an honor to serve as your chapter president. Please reach out if the Aviation Chapter can support you professionally or personally.

On 12 Aug, Chaplain Captain Victor Marrero, Chaplin Services, presented "Beyond the Urgent". His presentation focused on the importance of aligning one's life with what truly matters, moving beyond a state of constant urgency. Using personal anecdotes as a father, husband, and chaplain, he explored how quickly time passes and questioned whether we are spending our lives in a way that reflects our most important values.

Core Themes

The Value of Time and Priorities:

The central question of the presentation is: "Does the way I'm spending my life match what I say matters most?" Chaplain Marrero emphasizes that while many people value things like family, faith, and health, their daily actions are often driven by urgent but less important tasks. Life reflects not just what we value, but what we allow to take up our time and energy.

Spending Your "Invisible Currency":

We are always "spending" something, not just money. The most expensive currencies are invisible:

- Patience and Focus
- Emotional Energy and Mental Clarity
- Time and Relational Trust

We are often more aware of our financial spending than our personal depletion. It is crucial to ask, "Is this worth what it's costing me?" as many urgencies are merely distractions, not true priorities.

Seeing People vs. Objects:

Drawing from the Arbinger Institute's "Outward Mindset" concept, Chaplain Marrero warns against viewing people as objects to serve our own goals:

- Vehicles: People used to get something.
- Obstacles: People who are in the way.
- Irrelevancies: People who don't affect our goals.

When we stop seeing others as people with their own stories, leadership becomes manipulation. The key is to remain curious and engaged with those around us.

Recalibration and Self-Awareness:

To avoid burnout and reactivity, it is vital to check in with yourself. The Chaplain offers two practical frameworks:

HALT: Before reacting, pause and ask yourself if you are Hungry/Hurting, Angry, Lonely, or Tired. These states lead to poor decisions based on temporary depletion.

The Power of 1: Create a rhythm of rest and recalibration to remember who you are beyond what you produce.

1. 1 hour a day (unplug and recenter)
2. 1 day a week (a true day of rest)
3. 1 weekend a month (extended rest)
4. 1 week a year (a true vacation or retreat)

The Necessity of Connection:

Life should not be lived alone. We need a support structure composed of three types of relationships:

Ahead: A mentor who provides perspective and guidance.

Beside: A peer or friend to share life's journey with.

Behind: A mentee or someone you are investing in.

These connections foster growth and honesty, helping to answer the ultimate question: "Who are you becoming?"

Conclusion: Setting Boundaries for a Meaningful Life

Life is short. To live intentionally, we must establish boundaries to protect what matters. Chaplain Marrero concludes by offering four questions to define these boundaries:

What deserves my time?

Who deserves my attention? What is worth fighting for?

Who am I becoming?

By answering these, we can move from a life of reacting to urgency to one that is purposefully built around our deepest values.

Key Takeaway

To prevent burnout and lead effectively, we must actively align our daily actions with our deepest values. We must set clear boundaries, treat people as individuals rather than objects, and implement systematic rhythms of rest to protect our invisible currencies (time, mental clarity, and relational trust).

Chaplain Marrero was presented a certificate of appreciation and a donation to Operation Warm Heart. The full presentation and slides can be found at <https://www.sdfm-aviation.org/luncheon/chapter-luncheons>

Secretary of the Air Force Financial Intelligence Agent - IN BETA

WHAT IS SAFFIA?

The SAF/FM Financial Intelligence Agent (SAFFIA) is a secure, conversational digital assistant, designed to significantly reduce research time by answering detailed questions in DEAMS, enabling rapid decision-making across the field. SAF/FMFO has done a great job of building this capability and have been "live testing" it over the month of June utilizing real questions users ask to validate SAFFIA's responses mirror analysis results. Although SAFFIA may not be 100%, it is pretty darn close. SAFFIA is being released as a Beta version for users to have as an added resource through FYE. SAF/FMF would rather have this tool available for FMrs to use now, rather than wait for the tool to reach 100% solution, which could take more valuable time.

OPERATIONALLY

- A conversational, semantic interface to structured financial data from DEAMS
 - Conversational – talk to the data in natural language, in multiple turns
 - Semantic – system understands the meaning of data; reasons over relationships

TECHNICALLY

- A multi-agent retrieval augmented generation (RAG) framework
 - Multi-Agent – composed of specialized LLM agents and models responsible for specific tasks; capable of reasoning, planning, and tool-calling
 - RAG – generates replies based on latest available data
 - GL, ODL, etc
 - Answer Bank, Job Aids, FMR, etc

SAFFIA's GOAL

In the past, finding specific financial details required advanced computer skills, like writing complex database code (SQL) or building massive, complicated spreadsheets. This created a gap between financial experts and the technical systems holding the data.

SAFFIA's goal is to close that gap. It translates complicated data systems into plain English. Instead of learning database programming, users can simply type a question in everyday language—such as "How much budget is left in this account?"—and get an instant, accurate answer. This puts powerful analytical tools directly into the hands of the people who need them most.

BENEFITS OF SAFFIA

- Light-Speed Decision Making:
In the military, making decisions quickly is vital. SAFFIA acts like a fast-track shortcut. It instantly scans millions of data points to find exactly what you need, reducing hours of manual searching and spreadsheet building down to a few seconds.
- Clear & Trustworthy:
You should never have to guess if a computer's math is correct. SAFFIA is completely transparent. For every answer it provides, it shows its work—explaining exactly where it found the data, which regulations it checked, and the logical steps it took to get the result. This ensures users can double-check the logic and confidently trust the answers.
- Grounded in Official Rules:
SAFFIA doesn't guess or make up answers. It is securely linked directly to the Air Force's official financial databases and strict federal regulation handbooks. This guarantees that every answer is accurate, lawful, and fully compliant with military policy.

NOTE: How to Get the Best Results from SAFFIA

When prompting SAFFIA, get the most accurate, mission-ready answers by structuring your prompt using these key elements:

- ID Who You Are & SAFFIA's Role: Start by telling SAFFIA your role and what persona it should adopt. While SAFFIA has basic instructions built in, explicitly telling it, "Act as a senior logistics analyst assisting an Air Force Captain," sets the perfect stage.
- Explain the Mission (Context & Scope): Clearly explain what you are trying to accomplish. Share what you already know, what data you currently have, and what data you still need to find to prevent SAFFIA from repeating work you've already done.
- Define Boundries (Scope of the Task): Define the boundaries. Let SAFFIA know the exact scope of the project so it doesn't wander into unrelated areas or overcomplicate the answer.
- What is the Deliverable (Output Format): If you have a specific format in mind, tell SAFFIA upfront. Ask for your output as a bulleted summary, a professional email draft, a comparative table, or a structured list of action items.

KEY TAKEAWAY

The goal of SAFFIA is to take the headache out of researching military financial data in DEAMS. By acting as a smart, secure, and easy-to-use assistant, it empowers Air Force personnel to make faster, smarter, and highly accurate decisions without needing to be computer programmers.

More information on SAFFIA and how to access can be found at https://usaf.dps.mil/sites/10194/SitePages/Air-Force-Financial-Intelligence-Assistant_NewsPage.aspx

Rich Brady to conclude tenure as CEO by the end of the year; Board of Directors to begin national search for successor

The Society of Defense Financial Management (SDFM) today announced that Rich Brady, SDFM's Chief Executive Officer, will conclude his tenure as Chief Executive Officer (CEO) by the end of the year.

The SDFM Board of Directors, led by Board Chair Alaleh Jenkins, will immediately begin a national search for SDFM's next CEO. The Board is committed to ensuring a thoughtful and orderly leadership transition while positioning SDFM for continued growth and impact in support of the defense financial management profession.

Brady has served as SDFM's CEO since November 2021, leading the organization through a period of significant transformation and growth. During his five-year tenure, SDFM has strengthened its role as a leading professional organization serving the defense financial management community and has undertaken a number of major strategic initiatives.

Among the accomplishments during Brady's tenure are:

Rebranding the organization from the American Society of Military Comptrollers (ASMC) to the Society of Defense Financial Management (SDFM), reflecting the evolving role and broader mission of the defense financial management profession.

Rebuilding and growing the Professional Development Institute (PDI) following the COVID-19 pandemic and establishing a stronger foundation for SDFM's education and professional development programs.

Celebrating SDFM's 75th anniversary and the 25th anniversary of the Certified Defense Financial Manager (CDFM) program, recognizing the organization's long history and enduring contribution to the profession.

Growing SDFM's corporate membership to more than 100 organizations, strengthening relationships between the defense financial management community, industry, and other professional partners.

Launching the CDFM-H certification, expanding professional certification opportunities for the defense financial management workforce.

Establishing member-driven initiatives focused on emerging issues in defense financial management, including the PPBE Reform Task Force and Audit Task Force. These initiatives have helped keep SDFM at the forefront of important and evolving issues facing the profession while providing members with a meaningful voice in discussions that will shape the future of defense financial management.

Implementing a new association management system and modernized website, improving the organization's ability to serve members and support its programs.

Creating new forums for education and collaboration, including the Data Analytics & Decision Support (DADS) Conference and the Strategy and Resources Conference.

Transitioning SDFM's staffing model through an outsourced organizational structure, creating greater flexibility and scalability for the Society.

Selling SDFM's headquarters building, strengthening the organization's financial position and providing greater flexibility for future investments in its mission.

Establishing the Defense Financial Management Institute (DFMI) event model, creating a new approach to delivering high-quality professional development opportunities to the defense financial management community.

"Rich has made an extraordinary contribution to SDFM and to the defense financial management profession," said Alaleh Jenkins, Chair of the SDFM Board of Directors. "Over the past five years, he has helped lead SDFM through one of the most consequential periods of transformation in the organization's history. From the rebranding of SDFM and the growth of our corporate membership to the expansion of our certification programs, the modernization of our operations, and the evolution of our conferences and educational offerings, Rich has helped position SDFM for the future."

Jenkins continued, "Just as importantly, Rich has been a tireless advocate for the defense financial management community. He has built relationships across government, industry, academia, and the broader national security community and has consistently championed innovation, modernization, professional development, and the importance of strong financial management to national defense. On behalf of the Board, our members, and the profession, I want to thank Rich for his leadership, his service, and his many contributions to SDFM."

Brady expressed his appreciation for the opportunity to lead SDFM and his commitment to ensuring a successful transition.

"It has been an extraordinary honor and privilege to serve as SDFM's CEO for the past five years," said Brady. "I am incredibly proud of what we have accomplished together and especially grateful to the Board, our volunteers, chapter leaders, members, corporate partners, and staff who have made SDFM's progress possible."

"While my tenure as CEO will conclude with the current contract term, my commitment to SDFM and to the defense financial management profession will not," Brady added. "I am committed to doing everything I can over the coming months to ensure a smooth transition and to help position the next CEO and SDFM for continued success. I also look forward to remaining actively engaged in the defense financial management community and contributing to the important work underway across the defense sector."

The Board will begin the CEO search immediately and will provide additional information regarding the search process and position in the coming weeks. SDFM will continue to operate without interruption throughout the transition, with the Board and staff focused on advancing the Society's mission and serving its members, chapters, corporate partners, and the broader defense financial management community.
